Fan Mail:

Hey you stupid idiot, you say having a baby is no big deal. Why don't you try crapping a watermelon out your ass, you loud mouth jerk. Signed, Karen, Texas City

More Fan Mail

Steve you stepped on my last nerve. If you think having a baby is no more than having a bowel movement maybe you ought to try and shove a cantaloupe up your ass, stupid. Signed, Ms. Williams, League City

I notice there is an "r" missing from that last signature. Now I want to advise all men that if your wife is spelling her name "Ms", you had best get ready for the divorce papers coming soon. Thank you for the nice letters ladies. What is it with you women and your obsession with fruit?

Still More Fan Mail

Hey Moron you think menstrual cramps are fake. It goes to show that you are as stupid as you look. Signed, Tina, Seabrook

Even More Fan Mail

Steve, you don't know anything. I have menstrual cramps so bad that I have to miss one to three days of work each month. That's how much pain it gives me. What do you think about that you inconsiderate jerk? Signed, Linda, Dickinson

Dear Honeybunch,

I think that if you worked for me I would fire your lazy faking ass.

Hey Moron,

I guess the mother of your children had those big headed sons and then went back to work the next day. Signed, Karen C, Bayview

Dear Karen,

I had the doctor give my wife a cesarean. He said she didn't need one but I had him do it anyway on a Friday afternoon. That way I could bring her home on Saturday afternoon on my day off so I wouldn't have to miss any work and would have plenty of time that day to have sex with her. If I would have let her have the baby the normal way she would have probably complained about being sore down there and as I was just 19 years old I didn't want to wait. As for this menstrual cramps and bleeding, my girlfriend told me that she had this problem once a month. I told her that if she wanted to be with me she had to stop this faking and stop it now. That was four months ago and she has never had once since. I rest my case ladies.
